SEVERITY OF TYPHOID

Closing of Week's Record at Health Office.

STATISTICAL DATA

GRAVITY OF SITUATION SHOWN BY FIGURES.

Jump of Nearly One Hundred in the Total Number of Cases.

With the closing of the week's record at the health office at 9 o'clock last night there ended what is called by the primary of the week's record at the health office, this resume showing that during the seven days ending at 9 o'clock last night there were reported a total of ninety-five new cases, which number swelled the cases reported since July 1 from 246 to 341. During the same period there were twenty-seven patients discharged, given of them by death.

Yesterday, for example, there were only three new cases reported, with one recovery, a net gain of two cases over the preceding day, but this, probably, may be accounted for from the fact that the day was a half-holiday, and there was no afternoon or evening mail delivered to the health office.

The extreme gravity of the typhoid fever situation is best indicated by the primary of the week's record at the health office, this resume showing that during the seven days ending at 9 o'clock last night there were reported a total of ninety-five new cases, which number swelled the cases reported since July 1 from 246 to 341. During the same period there were twenty-seven patients discharged, given of them by death.

The condition of affairs indicated by this last statement is vividly illustrated by reference to the accompanying chart, which is shown the "typhoid fever curve." From this it may be seen that the present outbreak far exceeds in severity in this, the largest early stage of the development of the typhoid situation in either of the two preceding years. In 1903, for example, the maximum number of cases reported was approximately three hundred, and in the season, showed only 224 patients under treatment.

The week just ended, too, has witnessed the inauguration by the local authorities of a series of strenuous efforts to remove to the greatest possible extent any and all causes which might tend to the spread of the disease. Monday the police department, and each day this week the police by their beats have been making a house-to-house canvass to compel a general cleaning of backyards and cellars, which, while not of themselves so likely to cause disease from typhoid, were believed to in great measure influence the general health.

The general effort sought was a bettering of the conditions which tend to lower the vitality of all persons living in crowded localities where the rules of sanitation are frequently the least observed, and the city from typhoid fever lay in the Potomac water, an earnest effort is being made under the leadership of Commissioner Macfarland to have the further dredging of the great basin supplied into after the filtration plant is fully in operation. Assurance has been given that the War Department will co-operate with the District authorities to do everything which may in any way tend to check the spread of typhoid.

Of probably equal importance, in the week's developments, was the opening, much earlier than had previously been intended, of two beds at the new filtration plant. Either today or tomorrow 6,000,000 gallons of pure water from these two beds will become a part of the estimated 90,000,000 gallons of water which comprise the daily consumption within the District.

While, by process of elimination, it has been practically proved that typhoid fever germs find their way to the population principally through the medium of Potomac river water used in the raw state as a thirst quencher, many theories are advanced to account for the much wider prevalence of this disease this year over other years. Greater pollution of the whole supply on account of the heavy and continuous rains of the present season are regarded as an important factor in this phase of the case, both from the fact that the almost constant turbidity of the river tends to protect the germs from the generally fatal effects of sunlight, and because the whole watershed of the Potomac has been subjected to a washing at the expense of the capital city.

One theory has it that every cycle of years, not always of the same length, seasonally typhoid germs develop great virulence, this period of virulence gradually decreasing until another period of favorable conditions rolls around. This theory is not possible of absolute verification, though epidemic records at the health office, showing that in a more severe type every four or five years, would tend to corroborate the scientist's idea is not entirely without foundation.

A surgeon at the Army Medical Museum, who has long made a special study of typhoid and kindred diseases and who is consequently able to speak with authority, stated to a reporter of The Star yesterday as his belief that all typhoid fever germs reaching Washington through the medium of drinking water were present in more or less attenuated form and that the germs did not become manifest in their most virulent form until they had found lodgment in the intestinal tract of each person unfortunate enough to thus contract the disease. The germs again find their natural environment, he said, and they proceed to multiply in their most active and harmful form.

This same authority also suggested that danger lurks in the unrestricted peddling of ice cream, which is a common sight in the streets of the city. The vendors who sell this class of refreshment carry their left-over supply into all sorts of unclean surroundings of a night, he declared, and their fresh daily supplies are manufactured under no one knows what unsanitary conditions. A week ago yesterday, reducing the number of cases reported by the list of fatalities and the recoveries, there were 107 patients under treatment. Last night the number of typhoid patients in the city was placed at 295.

HAVANA TOBACCO. Investigation Being Made Into Its Classification.

Some tobacco papers and concerns have called the attention of the Treasury Department to alleged fraudulent importations of Cuban tobacco, and the department is said to be making a thorough investigation. The allegation is made that the government has been swindled out of thousands of dollars by the classification of Cuban leaf tobacco, which pays a duty of thirty cents a pound as fillers and $1.85 a pound as wrappers. The difference is so great that there is naturally a desire to get the tobacco classified in the filler class.

The commissioners governing the town of Leonardtown, Md., have passed a regulation forbidding the landing of colored excursion parties from this and other cities at that place. This action was taken, it is stated, in consequence of the disorderly conduct of an excursion from this city which was landed at Leonardtown about ten days ago, and during which Tom Williams cut and seriously wounded "Kid" Moore. Williams is in jail at Leonardtown waiting trial. Both men resided here.

PLATE PRINTERS' FEST

ENTERTAIN THEIR FRIENDS AT MARSHALL HALL.

Plate printers of the bureau of engraving and printing, accompanied by their families and friends, numbering several thousand in all, spent the day yesterday at Marshall Hall, on the Potomac. The excursionists went for a full day, and all who could stayed until the last boat returned to Washington last night.
